Healthcare-Future

- Biometrics in healthcare are on the rise according to the most recent market forecasts. According to Grand View Research, a surge in demand for biometric identity management solutions for healthcare has emerged from increase in medical identity theft.
- The increased digitization of healthcare that has resulted from the needs of the Affordable Care Act and other sector-wide accessibility initiatives has made medical records susceptible to hack attacks and large scale compromise. And what's more, healthcare patient data, especially health insurance information, is among the most valuable identity-related information on the black market.
